Self-esteem is a major key to success in life. The development of a positive self-esteem is extremely important to the happiness and success of children and teenagers. For example, a child or teen with high self-esteem will be able to act independently and attempt new tasks and challenges. On the other hand, a child with low self-esteem will avoid trying new things and feel unloved and unwanted. Parents, more than anyone else, can promote their child's self-esteem. It isn't a particularly difficult thing to do. In fact, most parents do it without even realizing that their words and actions have great impact on how their child feels about himself. Children remember positive statements we say to them. So, parents should practice giving their child words of encouragement throughout each day.
