35. - 37. soruları aşağıdaki parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

Deep sea creatures are fish and other creatures that live down in the deepest part of the ocean, and they have always been a matter of concern throughout centuries. Fish of the deep-sea have a light that they produce from a cell in their body. Only soft body animals can live at those depths such as jellyfish, sea anemones and other soft bodied animals. Gulper eels have huge heads and mouths, so they can swallow their prey easily. They also have elastic stomachs, which allows them to eat fish larger than themselves. A Sea Pen is a little worm-like creature that lives and crawls on the ocean floor. Many fish larger than the Sea Pen make it their lunch. Some fish, especially the Hatchet fish and the Lantern fish swim to the top to catch their prey.

35. Which of the following can be said about Sea Pen?

- A) It eats many fish larger than itself thanks to its elastic stomach.
- B) It can swim up to the surface to catch its prey if they cannot find any in the deep sea.
- C) It has a hard shell to protect it from other deep sea creatures.
- D) It seems to be not easy to catch, so other animals keep away from it.
- E) It is an easy prey for many deep sea animals that are bigger than it.

36. It is pointed out in the passage that Gulper eels ----.

- A) possess stomachs that are difficult to move or twist
- B) can eat sea animals that are bigger than themselves
- C) are often eaten by other kind of sea creatures that are smaller than them
- D) have tiny heads and huge mouths that enable them to hunt easily
- E) has very small mouths but elastic stomachs, so they can digest anything if they can swallow it

37. It can be concluded from the information given in the passage that ----.

- A) the harder the skin of a deep sea creature, the more suitable the depths of seas are for it to live in
- B) soft body animals cannot live in the depths of seas
- C) the dark depths of the oceans and seas are suitable for soft-body animals to live in
- D) no deep sea animal can swim to the surface even if it is to catch their preys
- E) deep sea creatures have hardly attracted the attention of people
